“I have to cancel the trip ...”

... is not the text you want to receive 2 days before a big ministry trip for which you’ve been preparing to go on for over a month. However, as always, God has a way of working everything out for the best.

Instead of going to Bocas del Toro with Erik, a national pastor, our whole family went to Río Indio, where Erik lives. We were able to do the following: 1) spend a great deal of time talking to and encouraging Erik and his wife about life and ministry, 2) make tentative plans to go to Bocas del Toro in September, 3) have 2 really good conversations with another pastor, Amado, about ministry needs and opportunities, 4) Clip was able to teach in 2 different churches, and 5) Mary and Isaac were able to spend a lot of time with several kids.

We’re learning that each day in the life of a missionary can, and usually is, different. Different is not bad; it helps us depend on the Lord more and more.

The kids in Río Indio really enjoyed some crafts that Mary and Isaac brought
